Georgia Southern College is many things — Sweetheart Circle, new buildings, old buildings, pine trees, faculty, staff, and administration. But above all, it is students — and without students it has no function, direction, or life. The student, therefore, is the Id of the college's personality . . . the hub of a wheel which would otherwise have no meaning. Without it the administration, pine trees, and buildings have no purpose. It is, therefore, this Id, the STUDENT, to whom the 1970 REFLECTOR is dedicated.

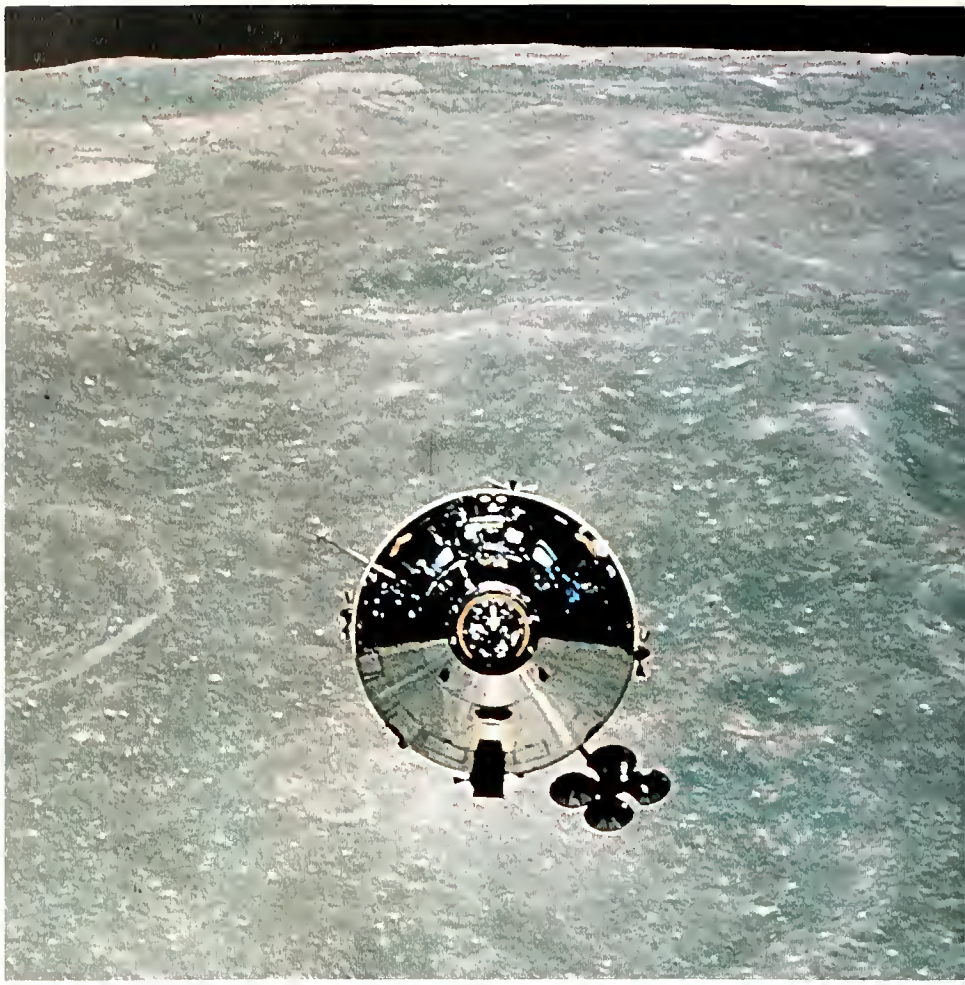
Four years ago we stepped into a kaleidoscope of sights, sounds, and sensations that we had never before experienced. We were called "frosh" and those above us looked down at us as children. And we were; we were children compared to what we are today — four years later. As we step across the stage to receive our sheepskin we can look back and smile and maybe with time even laugh again at the fun and crazy things we did and the few hurts will not even be remembered.

On Sunday, July 20, 1969, a little before 11 p.m., man stepped out of the grime . . . and reached for the stars.



"That's one small step for man "
The words culminated a decade of the most accelerated technical progress that America or the world has ever seen, a decade spurred by the words of a young president: "that before this decade is over "

It started in 1903, when two bicycle repairmen struggled to get a strange looking contraption airborne on a windy North Carolina coast. And 66 years later, less than an average lifetime, Neil Armstrong's one small step fulfilled one of man's oldest dreams.

It was a moment of instant notoriety, quite unlike many of history's other great events. There were no cheering crowds when Columbus first stepped ashore into a new world. No television coverage of a few patriots risking their "lives, fortunes, and sacred honor." No banner headlines to acclaim the Wright brothers' achievement just a few words buried on the inside page of a disinterested newspaper.

But Neil Armstrong's step was witnessed by the largest audience in the history of the world. Individuals, families, towns and nations stopped everything to watch.

Georgia Southern, like most of the world, collectively watched a television screen intently as Armstrong inched down the ladder to the moon's surface. Classes were called off the following day, giving students and faculty a chance to digest the event. Then Georgia Southern returned to its day-to-day activities, with the rest of the world enlightened, perhaps, from participating in some small way in mankind's greatest hour.

But what was the value in it all? Was it really worth the risk and the countless billions of dollars to plant a flag and a few instruments on a barren landscape a quarter-million miles away? Could the money have been better spent on the domestic problems of poverty, pollution, and world peace?

In addition to the technical and scientific data gleaned from the mission, there was a strange and unique sociological phenomenon. For a single brief moment, the world was united in a common objective, with its hopes and prayers focused on the courage of three men in a clumsy, ugly-looking device that wouldn't even be able to fly in the earth's atmosphere.

Perhaps it was best expressed some months before, when Astronaut Frank Borman told the United Nations of his observations of the earth from 240,000 miles away: "It looked like one single, united planet."

So the benefits were two-fold, both technological and psychological, as all the world watched, waited, and prayed while Neil Armstrong took " . . . one giant leap for mankind."

FACTS ABOUT NORTH VIETNAM

POPULATION: 17,800,000
LENGTH: 400 miles
WIDTH: 80 miles (along 20°)
AREA: 63,370 square miles (similar in size to the state of Washington)

TERRAIN

Coast and Harbors: Most of the coast is straight and sand dune lined. North of Haiphong the coast is irregular and rocky. Haiphong is the chief port.
Interior: The rugged uplands of the north and the Annamese Cordillera occupy most of the North Vietnamese area. The flat Red River delta contains the majority of the country's people and is a major rice producer. The vegetation cover is largely tropical rain forest.

WEATHER

North Vietnam experiences warm summers and cool winters. Hanoi's average temperature ranges between 82° in June and 63° in January with an average rainfall of 68 inches for the year. Summer is the season of maximum rainfall.

FACTS ABOUT SOUTH VIETNAM

POPULATION: 15,715,000
LENGTH: 585 miles
WIDTH: 100 miles (Cambodian border to Nha Trang)
AREA: 65,728 square miles (similar in size to the state of Washington)

TERRAIN

Coast and Harbors: Long stretches of the coast are unsuitable sandy beaches. Saigon, Nha Trang, Qui Nhon and Da Nang are the main ports. Cam Ranh Bay is a deep and well sheltered harbor of great strategic importance.
Interior: The northern portion is dominated by the rugged Annamese Cordillera mountain chain with fertile deltas along the coast. The central area consists of a vast plateau. The south is dominated by the Mekong delta and plains, one of the world's richest rice-growing regions. Tropical rain forest is the chief vegetation form.

WEATHER

The climate is hot and humid with temperatures averaging around 80° throughout the year. The highland areas are somewhat cooler. Saigon's annual rainfall amounts to 79 inches. The summer monsoon winds bring most of the rain.

"Civilization is the victory of persuasion over force." — Plato

On April 30, 1970, President Richard Nixon, in a nationwide broadcast, told America that he had ordered U. S. ground troops into combat action inside Cambodia.

Shortly after noon, four days later, Ohio National Guard troops fired into a crowd of students at Kent State University. In less than 10 seconds, 35 rounds were fired and four students lay dead. The country held its breath in shock and grief; then violence erupted on its college campuses. Fire bombs were set, windows were broken, students fought the "pigs" and firemen, and classes were disrupted as activities in many universities turned from academics to dissent. On May 7, the Georgia Board of Regents ordered classes in the state's 27 colleges cancelled for the remainder of the week. 84,000 students were given a long weekend. In all, 441 colleges and universities across the nation were affected, with many closing for the remainder of the year. The President was now well into the most trying week of his administration. Informed of the four deaths at Kent State he said, "When dissent turns to violence, it invites tragedy."

On May 9 and 10, approximately 100,000 students gathered on the Ellipse just south of the White House to protest the war. Early Saturday morning the President, surrounded by Secret Service men, walked among the demonstrators. He appeared either unable or unwilling to communicate with them, and left saying, "Have a good time in Washington, and don't go away bitter."

And now the students, at least many of them, have learned that outright revolt will accomplish little but further misunderstanding and violence. Or perhaps they realized that they, the students, are the ones who would be killed. Out of that peaceful Washington confrontation some have found that there is a means to effect change that is likely to show results faster than revolution. Hundreds of students with fresh hair cuts, coats, ties, and a ready smile have started to roam Capitol Hill and lobby against the war. Petitions and letters by the thousands are pouring into the offices of representatives and senators. Hopefully these efforts will get results. The pinch will come in the fall with the congressional elections.

"How many deaths will it take 'til we know that too many people have died?
The answer, my friend, is blowin' in the wind.
The answer is blowin' in the wind."

MAN
1-11-70
OSRIN

" . . Man, proud man,
Drest in a little brief authority,
Most ignorant of what he's most assured,
His glassy essence, like an angry ape,
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven
As make the angels weep . . "
(Measure for Measure)

The old established statement is that one who writes, or speaks, with authority must possess the qualifications wherewith to do so. Now, I must confess, the only thing that qualifies me to present a pagelet on pollution is the sad fact that I am a member of that most egotistical of egotistical species, homo sapiens (or as I am pleased to call him, homey sappy), that monarch of all he surveys, that naked ape, proudly determined to destroy, not only his God-given nature and her inhabitants, but himself, as well, this vain epi-terranean mole, this twice-blind ornament of the universe, hell-bent upon his own destruction.

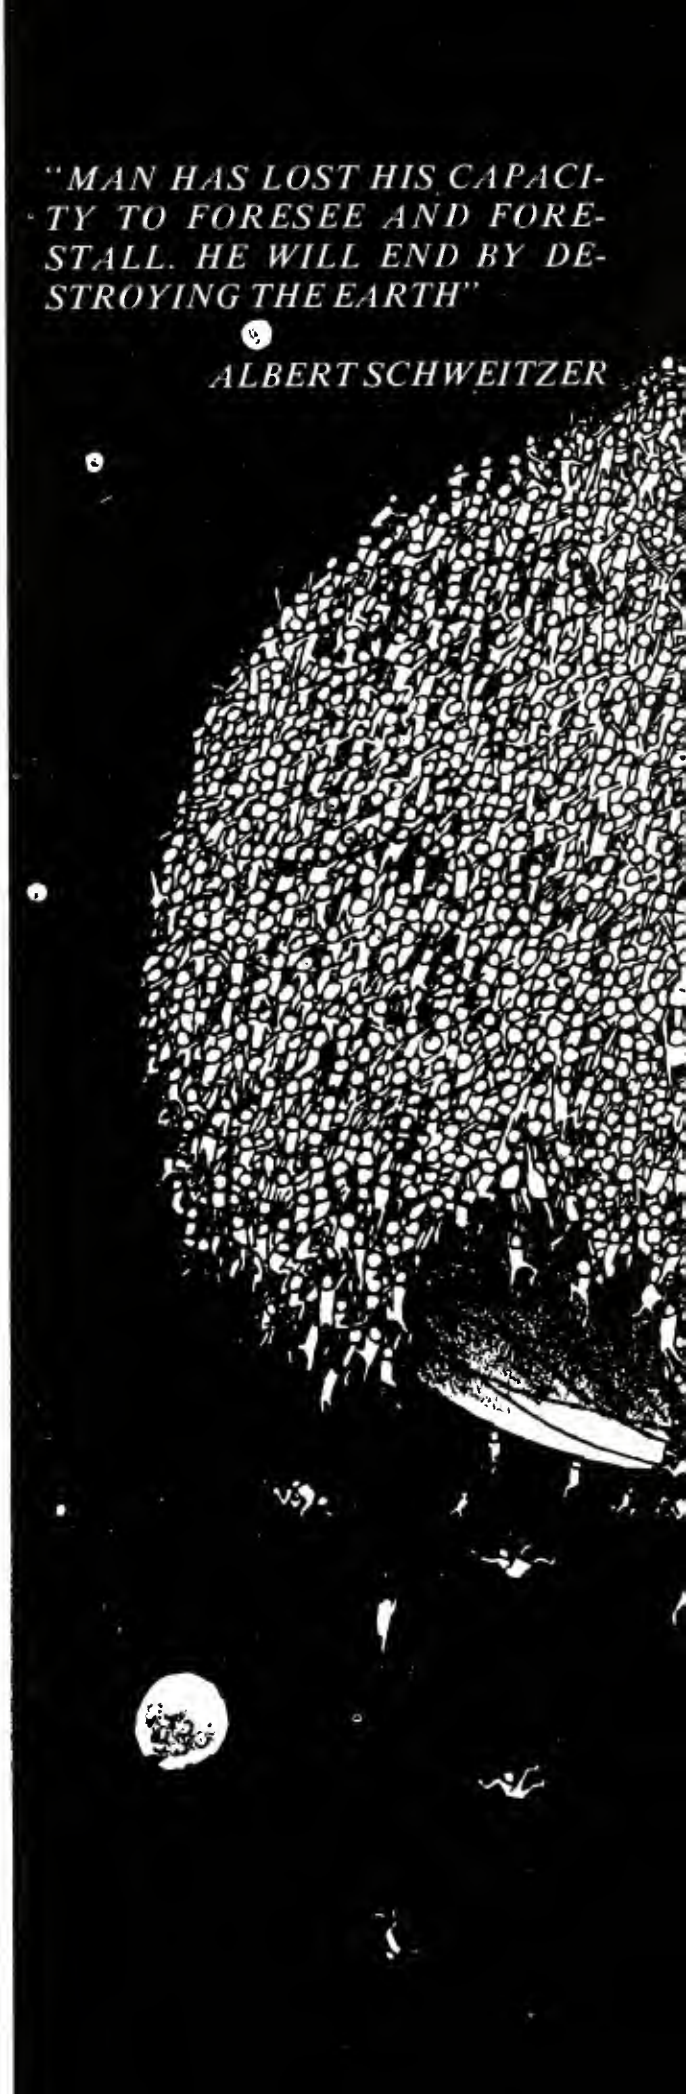
What I am trying to say is that man is his own worst pollutant. Not only is he born in corruption, but he lives in a corruption of which he is the sole creator. He dwells in an intellectual miasma, through which he stumbles with his myopic vision, ever looking for more means with which to terminate his existence.

I am no scientist. I wouldn't be able to distinguish a microbe from a bacterium if I were to see them walking across campus hand in hand. But I know this — I and my fellow man are vile pollutants. Why, should I return to that old white mud spring, where in my youth I and an old crawfish were joint users of its unpolluted waters, that old crawfish would rise to the surface and spit a vitriolic indictment right in my eye.

Go to the ant thou sluggard — and learn how to keep house.
(proverbs and F. Russell)

"MAN HAS LOST HIS CAPACITY TO FORESEE AND FORESTALL. HE WILL END BY DESTROYING THE EARTH"

ALBERT SCHWEITZER



There is another type of pollution, perhaps not as physically harmful as the smog, oil slicks, and slime, but detrimental, nonetheless, to a society which extols the beauty of its environment.

Visual pollution — that aspect of "civilized" development which replaces grass with pavement, trees with apartment complexes, and scenic landscapes with brick walls.

Once it was enough for a house to look like a house and an office building to look like an office building. Now gas stations must look like homes, motels like medieval castles, and office buildings like parlours of seduction.

Why? Society demands it, the architects and designers tell us. And what society wants, society gets. The social critic might add, "What society gets, society deserves."

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," the old adage has it. But a thing of ugliness is a self-perpetuating nightmare. So it's a question of priorities ... whether society will complacently suffocate on the scum and visual monstrosities, or whether it will awaken to the urgent demands which require immediate steps to stop the erosion.

So for society, as for Frost's traveller, two roads diverge in a wood ... and there's a choice of one ...

This was a year of firsts for basketball, Georgia Southern style. It marked the school's first association with the prestige-laden National Collegiate Athletic Association, better known as the NCAA. Quite an important catalyst for national recognition, both for the "Big Blue" and the institution.

Next, the Eagles' birdhouse. Pretty neat, huh? You watched the Eagles cavort in a $1.5 million fieldhouse. The floor is unique and the view from any seat is good. Fans have a choice of 6,000 seats and from the playing floor to the training room, the press box to the restrooms, it's first rate. Except for the lack of air conditioning.

If you watched the Eagles perform, you no doubt left pleased. Frank Radovich, who has ended his third year at the helm and his association with the college, guided the birds to a 17-6 season. Included was a 14 game victory march that sent them from a dismal 3-5 record to a 17-5 mark including the first game of the NCAA South Atlantic Regional Tournament which was played here.

Old Dominion fell to Southern in the first round but we lost to old rival Stetson in the championship game. A little disappointed but we were proud as hell. The spirit shown during the tournament was tremendous.

JOHN O. EIDSON
President

To the Graduates of 1970:

In the past decade, Georgia Southern has more than quadrupled in enrollment, has almost quadrupled in its number of faculty, and has doubled its number of buildings. One look at the figures will show how rapidly we are growing: we began this year with a student enrollment of 5,100 and a faculty of 273; we will begin next year with about 5,500 students and 300 faculty.

But along with this quantity, we are striving for quality. Just as man cannot live by bread alone, so a college cannot thrive if all it has is numbers — no matter how many numbers. It must have quality, it must have heart as well as head, and it must have ideals which are not just listed in its publications but which mean something to its students, its faculty, and its alumni.

All of this, Georgia Southern is striving for. We are proud that half of our faculty have the doctor's degree and are doing research and scholarly work. We are proud that our students are winning state and regionwide honors and are making good records both as students and as men and women.

Along with knowledge, we want wisdom. The one comes, but the other lingers. And we want understanding — to see the truth, to combat prejudice, to help others, and to face the complexities of the 1970's, which are likely to become even more complex.

You, our graduates of 1970, have been a part of our striving to these ends. You have contributed valuably to our efforts. We only hope that we have made a valuable contribution to your life. Particularly, we hope that along with knowledge and wisdom you have gained a stability of moral character that will give you the strength to cope with all eventualities: a resourcefulness to seek, to find, to ask questions, not just answer them.

As you leave Georgia Southern, we hope that you carry these traits with you, and our interest and concern will go with you wherever you go, no matter how far. Our success will be measured by your success.

Our best wishes to you for the future. We will not forget you, and we hope that your life here has become so much a part of you that you will not forget us.

Sincerely,

John O. Eidson

POPE A. DUNCAN
Vice-President

"Georgia Southern College is many things, but it is nothing at all if it is not an academic and intellectual center. All of its activities and functions must be measured in relationship to their contributions to the intellectual growth of its students.

"Quality in the College is assured by admission standards which mean that only students who are capable of successfully pursuing an academic program are permitted to enroll, by an increasingly able faculty, and by expanded facilities. Within this year the Board of Regents has approved a new four-million dollar library, and the College is making every effort to bring its collection to a high standard of quality and size. Faculty have teaching as their primary responsibility but are aware that they must continue their own research and writing in their disciplines to be able to bring to students the excitement of intellectual growth and the pursuit of knowledge."

ZACH S. HENDERSON

President Emeritus

Dr. Zach S. Henderson, President Emeritus of the College, is himself an institution here. Joining the administration as Dean in 1927, Henderson has been associated with the College for 43 years.

From 1948 to 1968, Henderson served as president. To put this into perspective, he held that position for more years than many of us have been alive. Yet he thoroughly enjoyed associating and talking with students. Indeed, he continued to teach classes occasionally until his retirement.

Henderson served the college, the country, and education well during his tenure, leading the college during impressive years of growth. When he came to Georgia Normal School, as it was then named, there were six buildings and 303 students. When he became president, there were 12 buildings and 724 students. At the time of his retirement, the College had over 30 buildings and well over 4,000 students. Through his dedication and leadership, the quality of the College improved concomitantly with the physical growth.

JACK AVERITT
Graduate School

A program of graduate degrees was initiated in 1958 with authorization by the State Board of Regents to offer a teacher education program.

Graduate study has had phenomenal growth. In 1961, 49 degrees were awarded in one field. In 1969, 122 degrees were awarded in six programs.

The purpose of graduate study is the promotion of scholarship that is thorough, creative, and independent in character. The program finds its province in training the student to become an investigator in special fields of learning, broadening his professional and cultural background, and fostering research and the application of research methods in improving his professional skills and competence.

NICHOLAS W. QUICK

School of Arts & Sciences

The School of Arts and Sciences encompasses five academic divisions: fine arts (with departments of art and music), home economics, languages (with departments of English, modern foreign language, and speech), science and mathematics (with departments of biology, chemistry, geology, mathematics, and physics), and social science (with departments of history, political science, psychology, and sociology).

The School teaches principles of analytical thought, introduces a specialized bloc of subject matter, and inter-relates contents of various fields. The faculty's major objective is development of an atmosphere that is creative, current, and challenging. Its graduates respect, above all, the free exchange of ideas under the rules of intellectual integrity.

STARR MILLER

School of Education

The College, through the School of Education, offers both undergraduate and graduate programs for the preparation of teachers and administrative personnel.

The purpose of the School of Education is many-fold. Not only does it prepare students for teaching and administrative positions, it also creates a center for the study of education and dissemination of educational development. It furthermore provides an opportunity for school personnel preparation courses to be academically strong, distinctively creative, effective with students, and influential in the geographic area.

HILTON T. BONNIWELL

School of Continuing Education

One purpose of an educational institution is the ability to fill the needs of persons wishing to acquire, or augment, new interests and skills. To accomplish this, the Division of Continuing Education and Public Services attempts to provide such activities at times and places where adults may take advantage of them.

In addition, the division formulates programs for adults to enable them to continue their intellectual and cultural interests on the college level. Courses are designed to contribute to the development of an informed and responsible citizenry.

ALMA MATER

Down among the murmuring pine trees
Where old nature smiles,
G. S. C. holds up a standard
Known for miles and miles.

Lift the chorus, speed it onward,
Ne'er her standard fail,
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater,
G. S. C., all hail.

From the blue and broad Atlantic
Balmy breezes blow,
Wafting far G. S. C.'s spirit
May she ever grow.

Lift the chorus, speed it onward,
Ne'er her standard fail,
Hail to thee, our Alma Mater,
G. S. C., all hail.

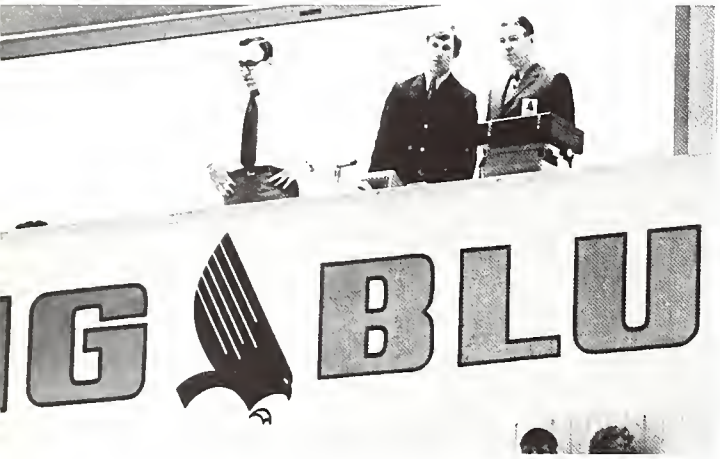
SPORTS

The Eagles finished their first season as a full-fledged member of the NCAA with a 17-6 record, including hosting the South Atlantic Regional Tournament in March.



Averaging 87 points per game while allowing but 77, the Eagles were led by Roger Moore with a 19.4 average per game. He was followed by Steve Buckler who popped in 17.8, John Norman 17.0, and Phil Sisk 13.3. Playmaker and the man who controlled the gears, Gene Brown, had a 9.5 average and many assists.

The bench was always there and reliable.

GYMNASTICS

The 1970 gymnastics team finished a "mediocre" season (by Eagle standards) with a 6-3 record. This was due largely to the depletion of the team, mostly through injuries. The five remaining competitors did an excellent job when one considers this.

Two members of the team, Danny Warbutton and David Zirnzak, competed in the NCAA National Tourney in April at Ann Arbor, Michigan. Finishing high in their specialties, these two carried the Eagles to 11th place in the nation on a team basis.

BASEBALL

Spring at Georgia Southern is baseball. Winning is the baseball tradition at Eagle Field. This season wasn't exceptional, but nor was it an exception. The record was 16-10 and that included a whipping of Florida State University, the nation's number one collegiate team on the diamond.

Bill Speith is a master at baseball. Talent abounded at Eagle Field this spring and the talent produced. Speith knows how to recruit and any coach can tell you that's 50 percent of the job.

Baseball was played under the lights here this season — and under the sun. The pitching staff was better than average and, as always, Georgia Southern had the sticks.

The defense was adequate and the caliber of play was excellent. Typical Georgia Southern Baseball. A national championship came to Statesboro in 1962 and Speith is well on his way towards another national title.

Herbie Hutson and Jimmy Fields were two of the many keys to the Eagles' success. Speith is looking to 1971 as a banner year for Southern.

A new sport was initiated this year with the formation of a tennis club for women which competed informally. The women, playing such teams as West Georgia, Florida State, and Waycross High School, did so well there is a possibility a formal team will be established next year.

GOLF TEAM

The 1970 golf team capped a successful season by being invited to the NCAA National Tourney in Youngstown, Ohio in June.

The team finished the regular season with a 13-5-2 record. This was achieved by the addition of four top linksmen to go with the three lettermen from last year, Brooks Simmons, Eddie Register, and Stan Czerno. The new men were Jimmy Ellis (Virginia State junior champion and low medalist this year), Pat Lane (Chris Schenkel Award winner), Ricky Armstrong, and Mickie Pass.

INTRAMURALS

KΣ —#1 FOOTBALL
AT Ω —#1 SOFTBALL

Intramural sports were again an important aspect of 1969-70 as both Independent and Greek teams competed for championships in football, basketball, and soft ball.

Afternoons throughout the year provided the opportunity to participate in, or support, the various sports.

FRESHMEN

" the freshman looked at himself and did not understand what he saw. He saw a partly formed mold, chiseled and etched by the same codes of life as those of his parents. He did not know of the major issues of today and if he did, he could not comprehend them. He tended to take a back seat to the seriousness of life and to look only for the fun and laughs. But also he saw that these rough edges were ready to be shaped and smoothed. In another year he was to see that there was more to life than a cold beer, a dirty joke, and a loud laugh. He was to find Shakespeare and Dante, acids and bases, unknowns and integrals. He would begin to take a stand on issues that interested and affected him. He would slowly come alive and find that he is what life is about and that tomorrow would bring a new dimension."

FRESHMEN GAMES

SOPHOMORES

Sophomores are supposed to think they know everything. They are over the insecurity they encountered as freshmen and now begin to do things they think college students do. They go Greek, get drunk at the Line, go to the beach every weekend, and generally raise Hell. All of us must go through this before beginning to think things through for ourselves. Certainly during the sophomore year thinking is a anathema to most students. This too will pass. The frivolous sophomore will become the concerned, conscientious junior who will begin to assume leadership. Hopefully they will begin to care — about themselves, their country, and the world. Thankfully, most do.

JUNIORS

"The junior year is a time of realization. For the first time, juniors realize that soon they will be out of school — on their own. With this revelation comes the idea that we are in school to learn, not to see what little we can get by with. Some of our subjects are interesting for the first time. This year juniors have been more aware than before. We have participated in Earth Day, discussed the war in Cambodia and Vietnam, and taken part in campus activities. Perhaps we as seniors will continue to become more involved and take constructive action through the system to attain our goals, preparing ourselves to encounter the life ahead."

SENIORS

" the senior looked at himself and tried to understand what he saw. His attitudes about today's controversial issues have changed completely, or at least to some degree, from what they were three years ago. He began to care about the world around him. Why should he sit back letting things rot and decay, when he can speak his feelings and try to do his part in making a better world.

"As the Senior of '70 steps into society, its members don't want to destroy everything. They want instead to help make society better in some small way. They feel this way because they care a little more than they did last year."
